HIPAA compliance is a requirement for any healthcare practice. HIPAA violations can be extremely costly, in terms of both money and reputation.

Local Healthcare Provider

Standards for Privacy of Individually Identifiable Health Information establishes national standards for the protection of certain health information. The Security Standards for the Protection of Electronic Protected Health Information establish a national set of security standards for protecting certain health information that is held or transferred in electronic form. The Security Rule operationalizes the protections contained in the Privacy Rule by addressing the technical and non-technical safeguards that organizations must put in place to secure individuals' electronic protected health information.

Their Challenges

All electronic copies of protected health information (PHI) must be secured and backed-up in a variety of ways for an organization to be HIPAA compliant. This includes:

- administrative safeguards
- physical safeguards
- technical safeguards
- organizational requirements
- policies and procedures
- documentation requirements

CASE STUDY

Our Solution

We performed an initial HIPAA assessment and audit to identify risks, breaking them into 22 distinct standards to analyze.

We then:

- assisted the client with employee training
- implemented our Technology Success Practice, a 360 degree approach to technology management
- implemented our range of cyber security tools
- helped them develop and refine a backup and disaster recovery plan
- utilized our team of technology experts to manage and monitor their systems.

The Results

HIPAA compliance assured, healthcare providers work with peace of mind. Through an education process for the staff, clear knowledge of policies and procedures was shared, reducing the risk of a HIPAA violation or a data breach. Effective collaboration between Attentus and the client ensured that their technology needs were met, which improves working conditions for the practice.
